REAP For 1971

The new Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) for 1971, emphasizing a broad attack on the environmental problems created by the Nation's farming operations, was announced today by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin.

Announcement of the new program, formerly known as the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP), permits resumption of the federal cost-sharing of various beneficial conservation practices with farmers, but under a restructured program in line with modern day needs to better both the on and off-farm environment. It makes farmers partners in the venture between the Federal government and State, city and local governments to deal with the pressing problem of pollution.

"The restructured program will be used to help preserve our environment, demonstrate good environmental enhancement practices, and return more public benefits at less public cost," Secretary Hardin pointed out.

Although the specific level of funding for 1971 has not been determined, the 1971 program will be funded, and the Congress will be requested by the Administration to provide funds for the 1972 program, the Secretary said.

Emphasis on the farm side will be on those practices contributing the most to the improvement of conditions for both the general public and farmers. Major constructions in authorizing cost-sharing of any practice installation will be the resulting public benefits such as pollution abatement, enduring soil and water conservation, recreation, wildlife, and open space as well as the degree of permanency achieved. As a result, the practices offered under the program have been structured to provide enduring benefits, significant pollution control, and enhancement of the environment for all.

Under the program, the Federal government will pay about 50 percent of the cost of practices that achieve permanent benefits. Practices that provide temporary benefits will be available only under certain circumstances and at a reduced level of Federal cost-sharing. Practices that are good farming techniques that should be performed routinely and practices that are incompatible to the farmer will be de-emphasized in favor of those having benefits for all citizens.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our wife and mother, Myrtle M. Guill, who departed this life three years ago today, January 29, 1971.

We do not need a special day, To bring you to our minds; The days we do not think of you, Are very hard to find.

Some day, some time, our eyes shall see; The face we loved so well, Some day we'll clasp her loving hand, And never say farewell.

Sadly missed by Husband and Children. 1-28-1p
